THE POET SLEEPS.

Peaceful and Painless Death of
Lord Tennyson

AT HIS BEAUTIFUL HOME IN ALDWORTH

Surrounded by His Wife and Son, His Doctors and Nurses, and the Household Servants of a Lifetime—
Press Comments.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Alfred Tennyson died at 1:30 o'clock yesterday morning.
Lady Tennyson, his son Hallam, and Miss, Sir Andrew Clark Dr., were the most of the other servants who had been with him for twenty-five years were at his bedside when death came.
He was tranquil, conscious and painless to the end.

Wednesday morning Tennyson turned, at his request, to face the light.
After looking at the window for several minutes, he spoke of the brilliancy of the sunshine and the clearness of the air. Early in the afternoon he slept lightly. He awoke in full consciousness.
He asked for his favorite copy of Shakespeare, turned the leaves until he found "Cymbeline," and gazed at one page for several minutes, moving his lips as if reading to himself. The watchers waited in silence for him to speak, but he finally laid down the volume without having uttered a word, and, with his finger still between the leaves, he fell asleep. The book was not removed.

The Evening News and Post says:
"He was the Mendelssohn of poets. He played upon the unvoiced emotions of hearts. Poetry probably will not be reborn him as high as Milton or Shakespeare. Even Browning had better. England's name and fame; he will have a clearer sense of things beautiful. There was no mysticism in his mind, it was as plain as light."

The Globe says: "We have lost the first Englishman of letters and the first poet. Perhaps he did not rise to Shelley's heights, but he knew the beautiful language of the heart. The world will always be that he was the greatest singer of the Victorian age."

FRIGHTENED NEGROES.

Coming to Repentance Under the Preaching of a Second St. Paul."

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Oct. 7.—The 2,000 colored people of this place are in a terrible state of excitement over the preaching of Rev. Andrew Jones, a negro preacher, who has been exhorting in the Second Baptist church.
Parson Jones claims to be a prophet, and among his prophecies he claims the falling of the Johnstown flood, and the Charleston earthquake. He says all his prophecies are put in his mouth by "the Spirit," and the ignorant negro thinks he is a saint. St. Paul.

Jones, a colored man, a few days ago, visited Rev. Mr. Smallwood.

There are stories of his mystically curing headache and other slight ailments, while one young man says he drove the scrofola from his blood. His actions and mode of living were such as to impress the fervent colored people. He swallows with difficulty, and was unable to take further nourishment.

On Sunday night he aroused from an apparent sleep while in the house of Smallwood, and announced that "the spirit" was moving in him.

Several persons were in the room and with eyes staring from their heads they heard him declare that soon West Ham-ber would be visited by a terrible cyclone which would bring death and destruction to the ungodly. The announcement spread like wildfire through the negro settlement, and since then the meetings held in Smallwood church have been crowded with frightened residents.

The negroes, earthenware bowls above that Jones prophesied, will come true and are looking for the approach of the devastating wind.

Smallwood said yesterday that he believed, for he had known Jones to prophecy occurrences before and had never known him fail. Jones has left town but the effect of his visit is very evident.

FRIDAY EVE, OCT. 7, 1892.

A REPUBLICAN speaker in New York referred to Grover Cleveland as "the big-man-of-his-platform," now appearing in view of his recent letter of acceptance.

The same civilization that made Weaver's campaign in Georgia an egg campaign has produced a Democratic majority in that state of about 40,000. Stephen A. Douglas was elected at Montgomery, Alabama, in 1860, when he was a candidate for president. That section of the country seems to believe that rotten eggs and Democracy are inseparable.

JUDGE ALLEN points the laboring men to the pernicious system of state banks and depreciated silver, but he fails in his campaign to point them to the manner in which he proposes to secure himself against his own wild-cat money schemes to rob the laboring man, by making his rents payable in "sterling gold" the United States.

Now, I don't claim to be educated in law, but what do you think of this?

The only man who advocates legislation for the relief of the manufacturer is Grover Cleveland. In a speech in Rhode Island and also in his letter of acceptance, he appeals to the people to give the manufacturer free recompensation, on the ground that he needs it for his relief, that is to say we want to rob the poorest paid labor of the country that produces crude finished products by calling such products raw materials, and giving it to the "robber barons." While abusing day by day the manufacturers as thieves and robbers fattening on the legislation of the Republican party, not one of our Democratic papers has the honesty to attack this proposition by Grover Cleveland.

The Democratic press is still announcing and reannouncing that certain leading Republicans have renounced their allegiance to the Republican party, and have signified their intention to support Cleveland and Stevenson. It is remarkable, however, that those who have been Republicans, and who it is claimed have changed, seem to be ashamed to announce it publicly. On the other hand the Democrats who have come out for Harrison are not ashamed of it. Their consciences approve their course and every one of them is free to give reasons why they changed. Among the more prominent are George Tishnor Curtis, General Sickles and Beers, ex-Congressman A. J. Warner of Ohio.

BREAKING of the infamous way Gen. Weaver and his wife have been treated in Georgia, Major Robert Harris, of Va., who was an officer in the confederate army under Gen. T. J. Jackson; speaks as follows in an interview in the Washington Star: "I was amazed when I saw the press dispatch giving an account of Gen. Weaver's treatment, and still more amazed when I read his letter. I could not have believed that such things were possible anywhere in the south, and especially in Georgia, the home of Gen. John B. Gordon, whom we love so much in Virginia, and Gen. Colquitt, both gallant soldiers and southern born gentlemen. I am satisfied that no southern-born gentleman can read of these things without a blush of shame tingling his cheek. Heretofore I have been incredulous of the reported political outrages in the south, because I thought that there must have been more truth in these reports than I could ever have believed."

The difference between a voter who stays away from the polls (thus selling his vote for what he does in the field) and a city voter who sells his vote for a bottle of liquor, is only one of degree, not of kind. The voter who votes for the Democrat, and who is not voting, permitted the democrat to get away with the state in 1892. Will they vote it back into line this fall, by voting for his candidates in sympathy with his wishes and his interests? Don't stay at home, and then could like a fish-woman become good men are not elected.

Will they vote it back into line this fall, by voting for his candidates in sympathy with his wishes and his interests? Don't stay at home, and then could like a fish-woman become good men are not elected.

The difference between a voter who stays away from the polls (thus selling his vote for what he does in the field) and a city voter who sells his vote for a bottle of liquor, is only one of degree, not of kind. The voter who votes for the Democrat, and who is not voting, permitted the democrat to get away with the state in 1892. ## THE POET SLEEPS.

AT HIS BEAUTIFUL HOME IN ALDWORTH

Doctors and Nurses, and the Household Servants of a Lifetime—
Press Comments.

London, Oct. 7.—Alfred Tennyson
died at 1:35 o'clock yesterday morning.
Lady Tennyson, his son Hallam, and his wife, Sir Andrew Clark, Dr. Dabbs, the nurses and other servants who had
were at his bedside when death came.
to the end.

Wednesday morning Tennyson was turned, at his request, to face the light.
After looking at the window for several minutes he slept of the brilliancy of
now. He spoke of his favorite poet of Shakespeare, turned the leaves until he found "Cymbeline," and gazed at one page for several minutes, moving his lips as if reading to himself. The
not removed.

The Evening News and Post say:
"He was the Mendelssohn of poets.
After looking upon the unveiled emotions of hearts. Poetry probably will not reckon him as high as Milton or Shakespeare.
Even Browning had better notes. None, however, upheld better England's name and fame; never was there a clearer guide to mirth than he. There was no mystery in his mind. It was as placid as a lake."
The Globe says: "We have lost the first Englishman of letters and the first poet. Perhaps he did not rise to Shielley's heights, but he knew the beautiful language of the heart. The verdict will always be that he was the greatest
singer of the Victorian age."

FRIGHTENED NEGROES

ing of a Second St. Paul.

Wear CHESTER, Pa., Oct. 7.—The 2,000 colored people of this place are in a ferment of excitement and fear over the prophecies of Rev. Andrew Jones, a negro preacher, who has been exhorting in the Second Baptist church.
Rev. Jones claims to be a prophet, and among his prophecies he claims the fortelling of the Johnstown flood and the Charleston earthquake. He says all his prophecies are put in his mouth
groes think he is a second St. Paul.

Jones came to West Chester a few days ago and visited West Ashbury Methodist. There are stories of his mystical powers, his knowledge of
man says he drove the scrofula from his blood. His actions and mode of living were such as to impress the fearful colored people. He would eat nothing while the sun shone and wrote long into the night.

apparently deep reverie while in the house of Smallwood and announced that "the spirit" was moving in him.
heard him declare that soon West Chester would be visited by a terrible cyclone which would bring death and de-
through the negro settlement, and since then the meetings held in Franklin church have ended with frightened repentant sinners. These people earnestly believe that Jones' prophecy will come true,
devastating wind.

At midnight he whispered very feebly his last words to his wife. His finger still marked the passage of "Cymbe-line," which he had last read and thus he died.

"In all my experience," said Sir Andrew Clark, "I never witnessed anything more glorious. There were no artificial lights in the chamber. All was darkness except for the silver light of the full moon, which fell upon the bed and played upon the features of the dying poet like the halo in a rembrandt picture."

"The end was beautiful, calm and painless," said Hallam Tennyson. "He passed away as if in sleep, and the watchers could hardly distinguish the final moment."

During the last two days of his illness, Tennyson was told occasionally of the hundreds of telegrams of inquiry received at Aldworth, and he expressed regret at his gratitude that so many persons, far and near, were watching the course of his illness.

Hallam Tennyson read the dispatches from the queen each day, to which his father listened with evident pleasure.

Lady Tennyson made a brave effort to rally under her grief, but she is almost prostrated by sorrow and fatigue.

The poet's death was learned only after prolonged delay. Shortly before 2 o'clock the sky became clouded and a cold rain began to fall. Most of the reporters who had waited outside the gate left. Some time later Sir Andrew Clark left the house to take his carriage for London, and from him came the first news of the poet's death.

Lord Tennyson lies on the bed on which he died. He looks hardly 40 years of age. The lines and wrinkles have vanished from his face, his hair is powdered, and his hands are unusually unknobbed. His hands are folded on his breast, wreaths of laurel are at his head and feet and Virginia creepers and autumn leaves are scattered round him.

Although the surroundings of the deadbed are solemnly impressive, pains have been taken, in deference to the dead poet's feelings, often expressed to his family, to avoid every thing suggestive of funeral forms.

Lord Tennyson was on the eve of departure for his beautiful winter home on the Isle of Wight when he was stricken down by the disease which caused his death.

Several evening newspapers were yesterday in mourning for Tennyson.
All published long leaders agreeing that it is too soon to give a proper estimate of Tennyson's position among the British poets.

The St. James Gazette says: "The poet of the century has gone, with his singling robes about him, leaving a name which will not die. It may be that others soared higher and touched deeper notes, but none spoke more words which knock at the hearts of men of his time. He embodied all that is best in the Victorian age. Since Goethe none has had a larger vision, but the English owe him more than the French owe Goethe. The whole world is poorer by his death."

The Pall Mall Gazette says: "His name will shine through the ages in the poetic galaxy. According to the judgment of the civilized world, he was immortal long before he died."

The same paper adds that Swinhurst will probably succeed Tennyson as poet laureate, and that in view of the "abuses" Swinhurst has launched upon Mr. Gladstone, the choice would be characteristic, and an instance of a great man's magnanimity to the end.

DECATUR, ILLINOIS.

as second class mail matter.

A REPUBLICAN speaker in New York referred to Grover Cleveland as "the big-man-afraid-of-his-platform." How appropriate in view of his recent letter of acceptance.

The same civilization that made Weaver's campaign in Georgia an egg campaign has produced a Democratic majority in that state of about 40,000. Stephen A. Douglas was egged at Montgomery, Alabama, in 1860, when he was a candidate for president. That section of the country seems to believe that rotten eggs and Democracy are inseparable.

Judge Arizona points the laboring men to the pernicious system of state banks and depreciated silver, but he fails in his campaign to point them to the manner in which he proposes to secure himself against his own wild-cat money schemes to rob the laboring man, by making his rents payable in sterling gold coin of the United States."

The only man who advocates legislation for the relief of the manufacturer is Grover Cleveland. In a speech in Rhode Island and also in his letter of acceptance, he appeals to the people to give the manufacturer free raw materials, on the ground that he needs it for relief, that is to say he wants to rob the poorest paid labor of the country that produces crude finished products by calling such products raw materials, and giving it to the "robber barons." While abasing day by day the manufacturers as thieves and robbing fattening off the legislation of the Republican party, not one of our Democratic papers has the honesty to attack this proposition by Grover Cleveland.

The Democratic press is still announcing and reannouncing to the limit of iteration that certain leading Republicans have renounced their allegiance to the Republican party, and have signified their intention to support Cleveland and Stevenson. It is remarkable, however, that those who have been Republicans, and who it is claimed have changed, seem to be ashamed to announce it publicly. On the other hand the Democrats who have come out for Harrison are not ashamed of it. Their consequences approve their course and every one of them is free to give reasons why they changed. Among the more prominent are George Tichenor Curtis, Generals Sickles and Beers and ex-Congressman A. J. Warner of Ohio.

SPEAKING of the infamous way Gen. Weaver and his wife have been treated in Georgia, Major Robert Harris, of Virginia, who was an officer in the confederate army under Gen. T. J. Jackson, speaks as follows in an interview in the Washington Star: "I was amazed when I saw the press despatch giving an account of Gen. Weaver's treatment, and still more amazed when I read his letter. I could not have believed that such things were possible anywhere in the south, and especially in Georgia, the home of Gen. John B. Gordon, whom we love so much in Virginia, and Gen. Colquitt, both gallant soldiers and southern born gentlemen. I am satisfied that no southern-born gentleman can read of these things without a blush of shame tinging his cheek. Heretofore I have been incredulous of the reported political outrages in the south, because I thought the manufacturer for campaign purposes. Now I am compelled to admit that there must have been more truth in these reports than I could ever have believed.

The country is the stronghold of the republicans, and one would suppose that they would turn out, to a man, at every election, in order to maintain themselves against the city vote, which in its very nature is hostile to the farmer, often fastening heavy taxes on him, to support the expense of crime committed and pauperism fostered by the city methods of misgovernment. But the granger works on plots his own, or employs, if he can't buy, his own, unscrupulous, one county, state and even national officials, whether he likes them or not. In very self-defense the farmer should go to the polls this year, and take a free man's place in selecting his candidates in sympathy with his wishes and his interests. Don't stay at home, and then look like a fish-woman because good men are not elected.

The difference between a voter who stays away from the polls (thus saving his vote for what he does in the field) and a city heelor who sells his vote for a glass of liquor, is only one of degree. Fifty thousand republicans, by not voting, permitted the democrats to run away with the state in 1890. Will they vote it back into line this fall, by voting? We shall see.

A Cholera Scare.

A reported outbreak of cholera at Hellmetta, N.J., created much excitement in that vicinity. Investigation showed that the disease was not cholera, but a violent dysentery, which is almost as severe and dangerous as cholera. Mr. Walter Willard, a prominent merchant of Jamesburg, two miles from Hellmetta, and son of Dr. Charles and Dr. David Willard, recently has given great satisfaction. It is the most severe case of dysentery. It is certainly one of the best things ever made." For sale by Swearingen & Tyler, druggists.

The time to buy is now and the place to buy is at Walter Hutchins' 117 North Water street, sign of the Big Shoe. Spt it.

Two Much of a Risk.

It is not unusual for colds contracted in the fall to hang on all winter. In such cases either chronic rheumatism or acute rheumatism are almost sure to result. A fifty cent bottle of Chamberlain's Cold Remedy will cure any cold. Can you afford to risk so much for so small an amount? This remedy is intended especially for bad colds and cough and can always be depended upon. For sale by Swearingen & Tyler, druggists.

G. A. Clark, speaking of the announcement by Wayne MacVeagh himself, that he, McVeagh, had determined to support Cleveland, says:

Mr. Wayne MacVeagh, the Attorney General under the administration of Garfield, has been expected to announce that he will not support Grover Cleveland. In the course of this announcement he makes some extraordinary statements in regard to the Republican party. Mr. MacVeagh once said that his retirement from public life entitled him to the courtesy of silence. He has chosen to depict himself as of late supported by the party which he has been attacking the party under which he has twice held public office, and by one more resounding principle, the maintenance of which he has regarded as essential to the prosperity of the people and to the maintenance of the Republic.

Closed the Schools.

The Marco Board of Health held a meeting Monday evening and issued an order closing the public schools, and forbidding all public meetings until Sunday, the 16th. This action was deemed necessary on account of the threatened danger of an epidemic of diphtheria. It is hoped the rigid measures adopted will prove sufficient, and we are pleased to observe a general willingness on the part of the citizens to obey the orders of the Board of Health—Marco News.

recently sown wheat.

Here's What the Plasterers Think of ROCK PLASTER.

WE THE UNDERSIGNED, contracting plasterers, after much experience and observation, take pleasure in testifying to the practical character of ROCK PLASTER, and while it will remove a not inconsiderable amount of business, namely that of patching, we advocate its use, as it enables us to do work and guarantee the results, and enables us to carry on our trade at all seasons of the year, and modernizes that part of building enterprise which has undergone practically no improvement in the last two thousand years, placing the business of the plasterer on the same footing as that occupied by the other trades through the advent of machinery and improved methods.

April 8th.

Republican enthusiasts at Boody, in Blue Mound township, was at a high pitch last night. Hon. B. F. Funk, the next congressman, and Ex-Senator W. C.
Johns, were there to address the meeting, and, in their honor, Chairman John A.
Barnes, with the assistance of other adative workers, got up a splendid demonstration. The Moon voters came over on horseback in a body, accompanied by many ladies, all of whom joined in the Boody club in the twilight display. It was the largest and most enthusiastic political rally ever held in the town. The hall was crowded to the doors and scores sat outside to hear the addresses. The great gathering was an inspiration for the orators who poured hot shot into the Democracy and gave the people the genuine Republican gospel on the tariff and sound money. Mr. Funk spoke for an hour and was followed by Mr. Johns who also consumed an hour's time. Blue Mound is in good shape for election day.

The First Shovelful of Earth for the Chicago & St. Louis Road.

The first shovelful of earth was thrown up yesterday on the Chicago & St. Louis electric railroad at Edinburg by Alice the 7-year-old daughter of Dr. Wellington Adams, the president of the new line, in the presence of 3,000 people. Several speeches were made and the occasion was a notable one. The little town was decorated and the enthusiasm great. A coal mine has been purchased at Edinburg and a power house will be constructed at once. One hundred teams and at least 1,000 men begin work to-day, and the first ten-mile section will be completed in a short time. The road will be in running order within six months. As it is the first long-distance road in the world great interest is felt in the enterprise. Letters and telegrams were read from the mayors of St. Louis, East St.
Louis, Chicago and other cities along the road, and ex-Gov. Dick Oglesby and other.

sibly the jury will give him a verdict for
